Share Your Joy

"Rejoice with those who rejoice" (Romans 12:15)

FOR TODAY: Joy doesn't just mean big celebrations or constant happiness. Sometimes it's humming to a song, sharing good news, or noticing a moment that brings a small smile. When we share tiny joys, we create connections reminding us we're not alone. Even on hard days, joy appears unexpectedly — in a bird's song, warm drink, or sunshine. Sharing these small joys helps create a sustaining web of connection.

→ Consider: What small moment of joy could you share with someone today?

SACRED MOMENTS: Paul's "rejoice with those who rejoice" shows that joy grows when it's shared! This isn't about forced happiness, but letting ourselves join moments of gladness. God delights in shared joy, whether celebration or simple pleasure. Like the shepherds who shared their joy at finding the infant Jesus, our shared moments of gladness become sacred celebrations.

→ Practice: Today, notice other people's moments of joy — a child's laugh, good news, a stranger's smile. Let yourself share their gladness, knowing God rejoices with us.
